Class of 1981

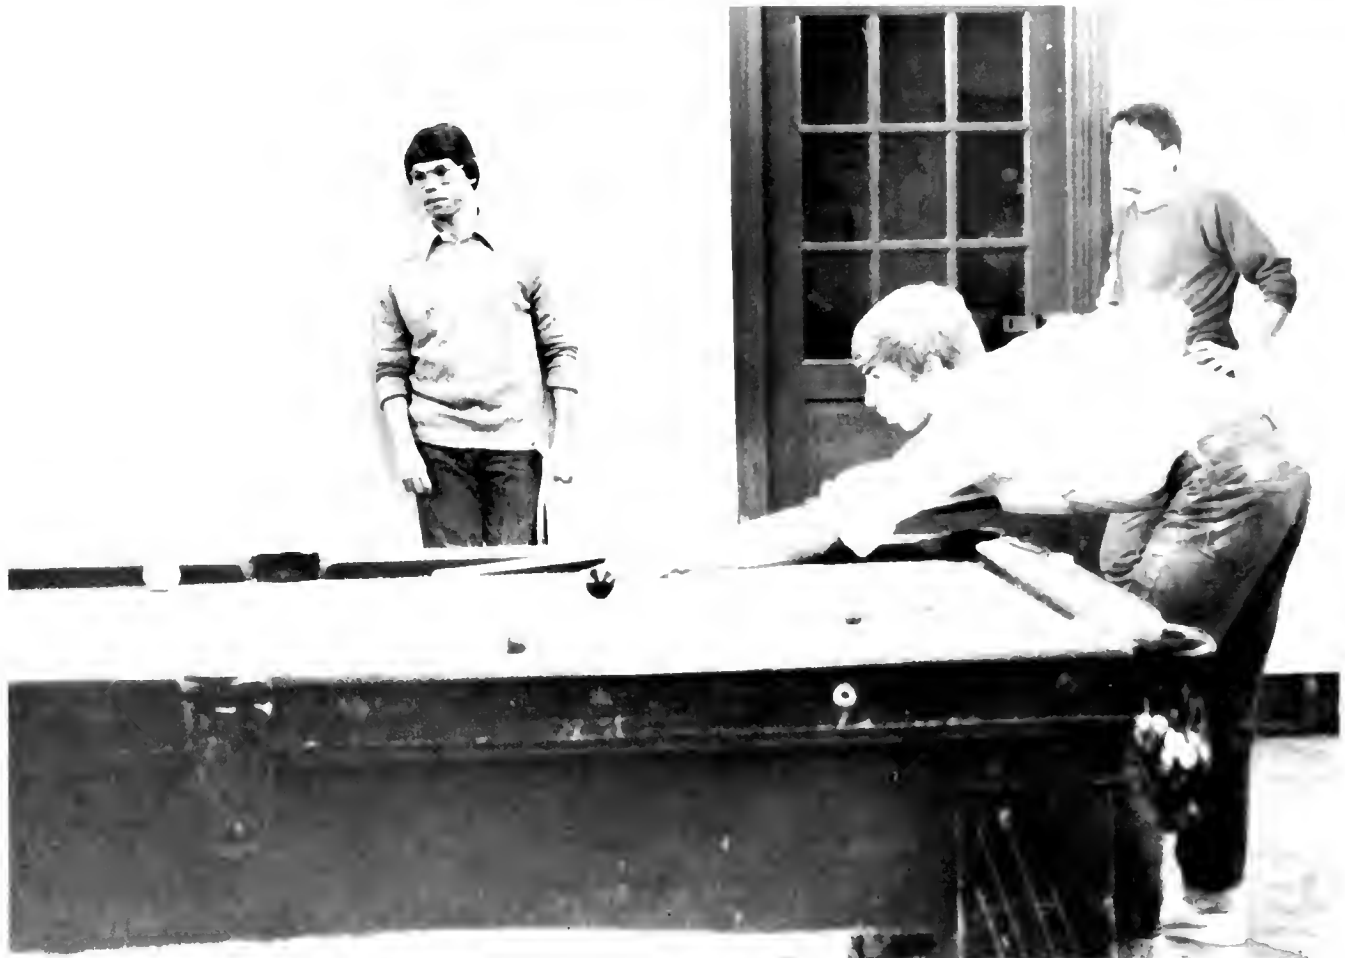

Back to School

No excitement is without its anxiety. And the beginning of a new school year is a bettersweet mixture of exhilaration and dread. Amid the straining to unload cars, the struggle to arrange rooms, and the effort to get oriented to Louisburg, new faces face all kinds of fantasies and hopes together. Second year students know they are beginning the end. First year students don't know what they're beginning. All they know are rumors and campus lore. But the common bonds of late summer warmth, confusing farewells, and impending classes let all the students feel a sense of community, the first sign of Louisburg College times.

Recreation is an art at Louisburg. Many dedicated people spend hours and hours polishing their pool games. Some students have even requested that the college have a major in pool. But administrators haven't taken their cue yet. And the regular cook outs and pig pickings that go on throughout the year at the college demonstrate the truth of the old Franklin County proverb; No one ever starved to death at Louisburg College. For culture, all a student has to do is hop in his Trans Am and highball to Raleigh, N.C. State, the dream of so many Louisburg students, offers an abundance of inspirational activities and refining experiences. Many students have noticed that between Louisburg and Raleigh is a small haven called Rolesville. Often, on balmy Sunday afternoons, small groups of students can be seen admiring the fine work on display in the front lawn of the cemetery monument factory there.

HALL SLIDE

The pressure gets too great—even in a sleepy little town like Louisburg. And the tension gets worse and worse, like a spring being wound too tightly, like a rubber band being stretched too far, like an apron spring tugged too far. So the student has to get out, must go wild, forget the future for a few hours, and just spread himself over the present. The homework will always be there. The tests will always be there, but in the face of such eternal verities, no normal Louisburg student could feel any sense of dignity if he hadn't had his share of parties, road trips, and spontaneous hall slides, signs of escape.

Aspects of Freshman Life

HOUSE of PATTI JULIA WILSON

Halloween Festivities

And Halloween screeched into Louisburg College with all the accompaniments this fearsome time of year always brings. Wright Dorm transformed from the domain of Clara Bass to the graveyard of Pattie Julia Wright, the home office of a mad scientist, a zoo of weird creatures in the night and a place of murderous noises that set spines tingling all over campus. The Plank Theater, for three nights was a haunted house full of fiendish foul ghouls. On a lighter note, the multi-purpose room had merry revelers in it, at a costume dance. People that never did get tired of dressing up as kids had a chance to don crazy clothes once more.

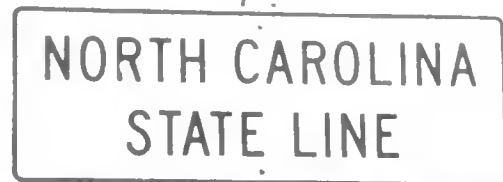

Talent Show

With Ted Mack and Ed Sullivan obsolete, Louisburg must fill the need that some people feel to perform. The Talent Show this year revealed that even a small college can be crawling with talent. From singers to dancers to jugglers, a packed auditorium was entertained for nearly three hours as act after act thrilled the audience with hithertofore unrealized talent. Several of the participants were offered jobs in New York and Las Vegas, but being more concerned with getting a good education than with living an exciting life and making a lot of money, all the performers chose to remain at Louisburg and finish their degrees.

The Signs of Lou-U

Faculty and staff as well as students have to abide by these signs . . . "Do Not Enters" as well as "No Parking Here". Do they abide by these signs? Well, they give it their best shot . . . But life around here doesn't just revolve around these signs. Worried faces, pale and tense are a sign that exams are nigh. Green leaves sprouting on the trees is a sign that Spring is on its way. Books flying in the air is a sign that the end of the semester is about here.

Homecoming

Homecoming was in November this year. The Homecoming game was against Ferrum College, and it was a hot one. Nineteen-year-old Billy Norris was crowned Homecoming King at half-time of the game. He was elected King in a cafeteria poll the week before. Others on the King's Court were, Walter Krentz, Tommy Freeman, Kelton Durham, Royce Richardson, Tony Autry, and Vernon Bagley. There was a dance on Friday and Saturday of that week. Both were hosted by the well-balanced music agenda of "The Experience" from Durham, which played Beach Music, disco and a little rock and roll. Approximately 400 people showed up for the dance after the Homecoming game Saturday night.

There were theme days throughout the week of Homecoming. The days were: Toga Day, Western Day, Hat Day, Fifties Day and 2001 Day. All in all, it was a good experience, and Freshman students looked forward eagerly to Homecoming '81.

Folk Festival

The Balsam Gap Boys, four teenagers from Sanford carried away the grand championship trophy from this year's Louisburg College and Franklin County Folk Festival held in the college auditorium. The Folk Festival took place Friday and Saturday nights, March 27 and 28. There were clogging groups, singers, fiddlers, dulcimer players and just about any other kind of country/bluegrass musician you can imagine. Also performing were professionals such as Mike Seeger, Ola Belle Reed, John McCutcheon and the Nee Ningy Band.

The same weekend saw not only the festival, but the National Whistlers Convention and the Ben Franklin Street Fair downtown. There was dancing in the street Saturday afternoon, before the crowd that had swooped down on Louisburg returned to the auditorium to see and hear the rest of the Folk Festival, which came to a climactic conclusion around twelve that night. It was exciting, it was exhausting—it was the Folk Festival!

Mello Yello Chug and Pie Throw

October was a big month for off-the-wall activities. Two of these were sponsored by Kenan Dormitory. The first was the Mello Yellow Chugging Contest, where several cases of this popular soft drink went down the gullets of Louisburg College students. Where in the world did they ever learn to drink like that? Next, there was the great Kenan Dorm Pie Throw. For a price, step right up and sling a cream pie right into the face of your favorite, or not-so-favorite professor. Dean Eller, Dean Morgan, Joe Farmer, and Ray Mize, among other notables, met a creamy fate at the hands of the students. The only thing that finally halted the slaughter of such innocents was that the folks in charge ran out of cream pies to sell.

Tug of War

The tug of war, a sign of many different conflicts: physical, spiritual, psychological, emotional, and financial. But this struggle is reduced to the purest elements: two groups of people, one group determined to pull the other group in its direction. Feet are clamped into the earth; backs clinch like fists; arms stiffen; hands harden as the rope goes as taut as it can. Teeth grind; every mind turns to elephant, to hippopotamus, to stone. For a few seconds, the combatants are caught up in a dream of total immobility, statues of flesh straining against a single direction marked by a rope. Hands begin to burn; balance is headquarters, but the war drops down to the hindquarters. You win with the legs—lean back and dig in.

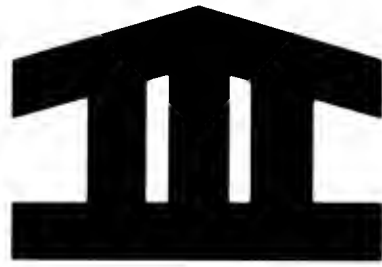

Parent's Day

It was a bright, cool day in the early part of November. Students with their shiniest faces eagerly showed their parents all over the campus of the place that had grown so dear to their hearts over the course of a semester, or perhaps during the year before. Class officers spoke to an assembled crowd of parents and students, along with Dean Brown, President Norris and special guests. After a sumptuous dinner in the cafeteria and Multi-Purpose Room the parents conferred with the professors the rest of the day. All went home convinced that their children were getting one of the best education to be found for the love of money.

Third Century Campaign

Louisburg, as the sign says, is the oldest junior college in the south. It's one thing to have been around for such a long time—quite another thing to be around for another few hundred years. But for any institution to survive, it must stretch itself toward the future—that's what nourishes a college. The past may give a school its identity and its reputation, but the future gives that school life. A college must be equipped to deal with the regularly changing needs of the society it serves. The Third Century Campaign is Louisburg College's assertion that it will continue to be a vital force in its students' lives, both while they're here and when they've established themselves in the future.

Demise of A Super Hero of Rock and Roll

News flash! December 8, 1980. John Lennon, former Beatle, one of the driving forces behind rock and roll as we know it today was gunned down in the streets of New York City . . . called the first rock and roll assassination. People mourned world-wide, and music minded students at Louisburg paid their own tributes in their own ways. Beatle music from the sixties and later Lennon music came from dorm room windows. And everyone knew for sure the answer to a question that had been asked for ten years—no, the Beatles will never get together again.

1980-1981

The Preppy Look

It once meant preparatory. Maybe the first place you heard it was in Love Story. Originally, it referred to snobby kids who were sent to exclusive, expensive, private schools so they could be groomed for the Ivy League colleges: Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, and Louisburg. Preppy meant Jaguars, Alfa-Romeos, and other cars your father had built for you on your eighteenth birthday. But even preppy has become democratized, humanized, and sandforized. Now preppy means colors—usually colors that aren't found in nature. Pinks that remind you of Pepto-Bismol. Greens that remind you of Green Goddess salad dressing. And yellows that remind you of Tweety Bird. Preppy means add-a-bead necklaces, gold chains, and signet rings. Preppy means animals: alligators, penguins, polo ponies, koala bears, kangaroos, Wallabees, lions, tigers, and bears. Most importantly, though, preppy means a special way of looking at the world; it's a definite philosophical stance; a clearly defined value system in which neatness counts, but socks are still optional.

Faculty Gets off

It happened late one evening when the moon was full. Several members of the faculty got the urge to Square Dance. Maybe the moon was full? Who knows what happened? Well since that time these faculty members have jammed out on a regular basis.

If Patton Dorm can't do it, it can't be done!

A sign of our times, a sign of our lives, a sign of what is, what was, and that which is to be. Though we may never pass this way again, we will know from the signs of our times that this time in history was our own special era. For though fads may change they will remain in our minds forever.
